V. Information on the consequences of breach of duty after the insured event

Information under Sec. 28 para. 4 VVG

Dear customer,

Once the insured risk has occurred, we require your assistance.

Duties to provide information and assist in clarification

On the basis of the contractual documents entered into with you, we may demand, after the occurrence of the insured risk, that you provide us with all information that is necessary to determine the nature of the insured risk or the scope of our liability (duty to provide information) and to provide us with all details that serve to clarify the matter (duty of clarification) to enable us to properly assess our liability. However, we may also demand that you provide us with supporting records / documents provided that such demands are reasonable.

Loss of benefits

If, contrary to the contractual agreements, you wilfully provide no information or incorrect information or wilfully fail to provide us with the supporting records / documents that we request, you will lose your entitlement to the insurance benefits. If your breach of these obligations is based on gross negligence, you will not fully lose your entitlement, but we may reduce the benefits in proportion to its seriousness. There will be no reduction if you prove that you have not been grossly negligent in infringing the obligations.

Despite a breach of your obligations to provide information or assist in clarification or provide supporting records / documents, we will still be obliged to pay benefits insofar as you can prove that the wilful or grossly negligent breach was not the caused by the investigation of the insured event or by the investigation of the scope of our liability.

If you fraudulently breach the obligation to provide information, to clarify matters or to provide supporting records / documents, we will in all cases be released from our liability to pay benefits.

Note:

If a third party and not you yourself is entitled to the benefits under the contract, such third party must also provide information, assist in clarifying matters and provide supporting records / documents.

VI. Final statements

I confirm that the information I have provided above is true and complete. I am aware that incorrect or incomplete information may lead to loss of cover. I have taken note of the above information in accordance with Sec. 28 para. 4 of the Insurance Contract Act.

In addition I assign my claims and demands against a party causing the accident / liable party or against my statutory health insurance fund / private health insurer in the amount of the benefits paid by HanseMerkur Reiseversicherung AG to HanseMerkur Reiseversicherung AG.
